Additional information

I'm interested in the dialogues of leadership, education and co-operation. Enough dialogues at the beginning provides good possibilities to make decisions people are committed to. Being present in co-operation and in dialogues requires mindful skills.

A dialogue is a situation where you start thinking together, loosen your opinion to listen others and create new understanding. Conversation is decision-making. Dialogues at the beginning, conversations in the end. Dialogical attitude is based on the responsibility of the Other.
